

NEW UNDOCUMENTED STUDENT RESOURCE WEBSITE

UC campuses offer a range of support services — from academic and personal counseling, to financial aid and legal advising — to help you transition to and succeed at UC. Now you can find this information all in one spot: undoc.universityofcalifornia.edu

Whether you're applying to UC as a freshman or transfer student, UC's new undocumented student resource website also provides helpful tips for going through the application process as an undocumented student.

What you can find at undoc.universityofcalifornia.edu:

Helpful tips for filling out the UC undergraduate application (and fee waiver information)

A list of campus staff and faculty members who can help you find academic, financial, legal, health and social support both on and off campus

What to do in the personal statement

Financial aid options (yes, there's money for you!)

Undocumented student organizations at each campus

How to fill out the Social Security number, citizenship status and residency information on the application

How to answer questions about your parents' citizenship status
